was twenty-six miles long. For yachts twenty and not exceeding forty rating the course was a distance of thirty miles. Valkyrie III was rated at 185 and gave Allsa, which was estimated to rate two minutes and fifty-nine seconds. Britannia rated at 153, got an allowance of four minutes two seconds.

Niagara competed against the twenty raters, Zinita and Dakotah, whose top mast has been lengthened in order to bring per up to eleven rating. The latter got twelve minutes fifty-three seconds allowance from Niagara over the thirty-one-mile course. The race was stopped at the end of the first round and Niagara was declared the winner. The following were the limes at the end of the first round: Niagara, 4 h. 27 m. 38 s.; Zinita, 4 h. 33 m. 35 s.; Dakotah, 4 h. 35 m. 22s. A reporter saw Mr. Howard Gould on board Niagara just before she started today. Mr. Gould said that although the last few races in which his yacht had competed were only walkovers, yet he anticipated good sport during the racing on the Clyde. He added that he had come here especially to meet Lord Lonsdale's new twenty racer Eucharis, which will race for to be a great improvement on the other English twenty raters, and it will be a feather in the Hereshoff's cap if Niagara proves herself to be a better boat than Sucharis. Continuing Mr. Gould said: "I the first time on Monday. She is reported | Yarnelle, Rev. B. M. Nyce, Rev. Charles am convinced that Niagara has shown herself quite equal to, if not better, than Audrey, which has hitherto been the best yacht in her class. In a good breeze the Hereshoff cutter is far away ahead of her opponent, while in races in light airs which have been chiefly of a fluky character, the luck has been pretty evenly Mr. Gould, however, is not entirely satisfied with the sails which Niagara carries, and he has ordered a new suit. The mainsail will be ribbed in the usual way instead of crosswise. Mr. Gould applied to Ratzeys to make the new suit of sails for Niagara, but the patriotism of the famous English sail makers compelled them to refuse Mr. Gould's proposition, and consequently the new sails are now being made by a firm at Birkenhead, near Liverpool. The head sails of Niagara will be made of silk.

charged with the murder of his wife two years ago, was captured in St. Louis, Mo., and brought to this city to-day. The capture was a remarkable piece of police work a week ago, when the body of the woman was found under a house in which the Mundys had formerly lived. Two years ago Mrs. Mundy disappeared and her husband soon after moved out of the city. but nothing wrong was suspected, as Mundy gave it out that his wife had gone visiting. When the body of the murdered woman was found last week suspicion pointed to the husband as the murderer, and the police went to work on this theory. Mundy was traced from Toledo to Detroit and from there to St. Louis, where he was found to be living with a niece as a mistress. While being brought to this city by the Toledo officers Mundy confessed to having murdered his wife and placed her body under the house in which they were living.

Art Work in Western Towns. Hamlin Garland, in July Forum.

The Central Art Association of America was formed a year ago. The society has had barely six months for practical work and it had no money to start with. It has held exhibitions in a dozen towns, in some of which an exhibition was never before held, and it has held several important special exhibitions in Chicago for the purose of encouraging the work of new men. It has won the respect and confidence of the artists of the country and has given a strong impetus to the art of the West. The study courses have been adopted by hundreds of clubs, and the courses are followed month by month through The Arts, the semi-official organ of the society. It has issued brochures emphasizing the principles of individualism and originality in art, and many lectures have been delivered upon painting and sculpture by men who are themselves artists, with illustrative drawings and actual modeling in clay, and also with groups of illustrative canvass and figures in plaster. Arrange-ments are completed for the circulation of boxes of bronze and plaster reproductions of sculpture, and books of prints. A list of lectures is prepared to be given by eminent artists on music, painting, sculpture, architecture and interior decoration. A bureau of criticism will be formed, to which young artists in isolated towns may send their work for helpful criticism, without other expense than the cost of transportation. Through the influence of the assoclation prizes are to be secured for best work in various lines of art, and every possible stimulus will be given to the production of original art, without regard to school-original art will naturally be American and vital.

Second Assignment of a Bank. DENVER. Col., June 29,-The People's Savings Bank was forced to make a second assignment to-day. F. J. Spencer was named assignce. The action was taken for the reason that sufficient funds could not be raised to pay the July certificates. The bank has not been open for deposit since the panic two years ago. At that time J. W. Graham was made assignee. A scheme was devised to pay the depositors by the certificate plan, and in May, 1894, the bank was taken from the hands of the assignee and placed under the management of the directors. The directors succeeded in paying the installments when due until the present one, which is due Monday. There are no funds for the payment of this, hence

HISTORY OF TWO MURDERERS. They Die Within Fifteen Minutes of Each Other in Prison. Special to the Indianapolis Journal:

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., June 29.-William H. Artman and Joseph Paxton, two life-time convicts in the Prison South, died this morning, within fifteen minutes of each other, while lying side by side in the prison hospital. Artman was the victim of consumption, while Paxton died from the effects of a blow delivered by William Thurman, aged sixty-one years, another lifetime man. Artman resided near Tell City, Perry county, and was converted to spiritualism. His wife, whose parents were Quakers, and consequently opposed to Artman because he was not of their faith, tried to win their daughter away, but this made her cling to her husband still more closely. In February, 1893, he became crazed through religious excitement, and one night beat his wife into unconsciousness because she was singing a song he did not like Three days later he again attacked her and their little boy, and literally stamped them to death. His wife was found the next day by some neighbors with her face torn, her body mangled, and perfectly nude. Artman was arrested and sent up for life. Paxton killed Spencer Bryant in this city, n 1888, during a fight at a ball. He was sent up for life, and was continually fighting with his fellow-convicts, until a few months ago, when William Thurman struck him in the head with a sidege-hammer, from the effects of which he died. Their friends were notified, but did not send for their bodies, and they will be bur-

THE INJURED HUSBAND. Forced to Murder by Public Opinion, Not His "Outraged Honor."

W. D. Howells, in Harper's Weekly. The appearance, in most instances where the injured husband kills "the destroyer of his peace," is that he is not at all maddened out of his self-possession. He goes about his crime with very notable intelligence and deliberation. He steals upon his victim or lies in wait for him with entire seif-possession, and I have no doubt that he has forecast the chances of his acquittal for his misdeed before he does it. I have no doubt that far oftenest he would never dream of killing the destroyer of his peace if he were not goaded to it by a fear of the shame he must suffer before the community or thinks he must suffer unless he murders one of the paramours or both of them. It is therefore an abominable public opinion which forces him, just as in other times an abominable public opinion would have forced him to kill the slayer of his brother, or in yet other times to fight a duel. We have got rid of the avenger of blood, and we have got rid of the duelist, but the husband maddened by his injuries still remains to the enjoyment of an impunity in murder beyond the privilege of any other homicide. The theory which his apologists proceed upon is that the "betrayed wife" is always the prey of her paramour. In the words of Mr. Clews, unless the reporter has mislanguaged him, the paramour is supposed to "insinuate himself into a home under the guise of friendship, and with studied sly, ensuaring arts alienate the affections and betray the honor of the wife of his friend." But very possibly this is not the way it happens, except in the emotional drama and in very romantic novels, though it may happen so in real life. It seems probable that the injured husband sometimes knows this quite well when in the fine frenzy of becoming a law unto himself and preparing to do his injurer to death. Very likely he would willingly let both paramours go, but the public opinion behind him urges him to do murder in behalf of his sullied honor and the cause of domestic purity. He knows that if either paramour merits murder at his hands one merits it as much as the other, and that his madness, if it is madness, or the god in him, if it is inspiration, ought to deal equally with them, but in the very ecstacy of his abandon he is obliged to distinguish. out of deference to public opinion, and murder only one of them. He may safely count upon getting off with a slight imprisonment if he murders both, but he knows that he will not have the sympathy of the community so wholly with him in

I should like to ask the casuists who excuse or justify him, who say some that it is his privilege and some that it is his duty to shed his injurer's blood, why he should be excused or justified for adding murder to adultery? What has been gained for the purity or the peace of the home by this lustration of blood? Has vice been rendered repulsive, as the critics used to say of the stories where virtue was always

The moral of the whole affair seems to be that a man may kill the paramour of his wife; but is this a lesson at all profitable to the community? What sort of injured husband is it that commonly avails himself of this privilege or discharges this duty to society? Is he commonly a good man? Is he ever a good man? The statistics are not at hand, and one hesitates to hazard the conjecture that he is usually a good man, a man of pure life himself and a friend of the domestic virtues. But if he happens not to be a good man does he become better by the murder he has done? Or is it that he has sacrificed himself to the general good, and for the sake of civilization has taken a crime upon his soul which no good man could commit of London. without lasting remorse?

FRANCE AND GERMANY

THEIR RELATIONS NOT MADE CLOSER BY THE KEIL FETES.

Attitude of the French Naval Officers Severely Criticised by a Semi-Official German Newspaper.

(Copyright, 1895, by the Associated Press.) BERLIN, June 20 .- Echoes of the celebrations at Kiel on the occasion of the opening of the Kaiser Wilhelm canal are still reverberating on all sides. The attitude assumed by the officers of the French fleet is now generally and severely criticised and it is significant that the semi-official Allgemine Zeitung most unsparingly comments on the subject and charges the French with carrying discord into general harmony and with pronounced lack of international courtesy. The same newspaper belittles the importance of the Russo-French understanding so ostentatiously displayed at Kiel, adding: "The few Russian and French vessels there cut a very insignificant figure. The Chauvinistic utterances of the rabid portion of the French press are ridiculed here as childish. On the other hand, the cordial sympathy shown us by England is keenly appreciated."

The American ships, their commanders and crews, have been praised to the skies, and the exchange of courtesies between Emperor William and the American officers is interpreted as meaning a closer knitting of the friendship between the two nations. The officers of the cruiser New York are charmed with the Emperor's affability and good fellowship, and are surprised at his wonderful knowledge of the technicalities of their profession. His Majesty repeated the expressed thanks for the way the United States was represented, and referred to the admiration he felt for the American navy, and the indomitable spirit shown by it and by the whole American Nation on critical occasions, showing that he was thoroughly familiar with American naval history. His Majesty frequently used the expression, "Gallant Americans." Emperor William left Kiel on board the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, in order to be present at the Travemund regatta. He returned to Kiel to-day, and will leave that port on Monday for a month's cruise along the coast of Norway and Sweden, and he will arrive at Cowes, Isle of Wight, on Aug. 3, to witness the regattas there. At the various water cures of German; the hotels are now generally full. Carlsbad takes the lead, the visitors there number-

The utterances of the German press on the subject are very sympathetic The Vossische Zeitung, for instance, expresses the opinion that an era of vigorous foreign policy will now begin, and that Great Britain's compliant attitude toward

France and Russia is at an end. In fact. there seems to be a general feeling that the Marquis of Salisbury will lay weight on intimate relations between Germany and Great Britain. Herr Arendt, one of the leaders of the bimetallic party, referring to the downfall of Lord Rosebery, writes that the change of government in Great Britain will doubtless result in a new international monetary conference.

DU MAURIER'S NEW BOOK.

"The Martians" to Be Issued Soon in Three-Volume Form. LONDON, June 29 .- Du Maurier recently titled. "The Martians," would shortly be issued. It is to be issued in three-volume form, and will be considerably longer than either of its predecessors. Du Maurier expressed much interest in the success which "Trilby" dramatized had had in America. "Why," said he, "I hear that a manager named Brady has recently paid Mr. Palmer a large sum, and has started no less than six companies out on the road. America is, indeed, a large country.' Asked as to whether he would accept any offers to lecture or read in America, he replied: "No. I am growing too old to enjoy traveling about. Much as I should enjoy visiting there, I don't expect to go." Du Maurier and Beerbohm Tree are both anxiously awaiting the arrival of A. M Palmer, when they will try and arrive at some amicable arrangement as to Mr. Tree's use of Potter's dramatization of the novel Failing in this, Du Maurier will at once proceed to dramatize the story himself. Mr. Tree expresses much indignation at the report published in some of the American papers that he had spoken in disparaging terms of Lackey's rendition of the character of Svengali. "On the contrary," stated Mr. Tree, "I saw him in it, and admired i in any other way.

Terrible Effect on a Wyoming Cowboy Who Failed to Quit.

Of all forms of using tobacco the small paper-covered tube known as the cigarette is the most deadly. There are a hundred reason for this. In the first place, the cigarette smoker has no assurance that the tobacco is anything more than rubbish Secondly, the paper is well known to be exceedingly poisonous. Not more so than genuine tobacco, probably, but there is a paper that speedily breaks down strongest nervous system. Thirdly, cigarette is an insidous evil. It is so mild. and so handy, and so cheap, that the unfortunate smoker uses more of them than he has any idea of.

The other 997 reasons need not be given here, as they have at various times beer discussed in the public press, and so great has been the influence of these exposures that cigarette smoking has increased over per cent. during the last four years. Yet there are people who scoff at the power of the press! It is only necessary to show conclusively that a thing is harmfut to get thousands of people to test the question for their own satisfaction. Even in the far West frightful examples are to be found. The recent case of Mr. John W. Stebbins, of Wyoming, will do much to open the eyes of the users of the vile weed in its vilest form. It will pain ette has insinuated itself into the rural simplicity of Wyoming. Hitherto the inhabitants of that Territory have been a guileless pastoral people, who occasionally indulge in scalping, cattle raids and bad whisky, enlivened by a murder now and then, but never has their worst enemy charged them with smoking cigarettes. Now, alas! all this is changed It is no uncommon sight to see a gang of cowboys peaceably returning to camp after sacking a village, each with a cigarette in his mouth. True, some of the most noble of the cowboys stood out against the growth of this habit, and shot a few of the smokers; but although this method of argument seemed to be conclusive in individual cases, yet matters of policy prevented its universal adoption. So, in spite of the best intentions on the part of the opponents of the vice, it con-tinued to spread among the unsophisticated people of the plains. Stebbins fell an easy victim to the cigarette, and smoked incessantly. The effect of the habit on him was not noticed until one day he fired at a tenderfoot from the East three times in suc cession and missed him every time. alarmed his friends, and they besought hin with tears in their eyes to abandon a habit that was doing so much to undermine usefulness and influence on the plains. Stebbins felt himself rather shaken, and consulted a physician, who told him that if he did not give up cigarette smoking he would not live six months. Stebbins agreed to give it up-next week. This is a peculi arity of the cigarette smokers. They are always going to give up some time in the

As neither have yet come down, serious fears are beginning to be entertained on that ranch that something has happened to Stebbins. Thus it is that the doctor's most sanguine expectations have been realized, and the name of immensely, and have not expressed myself John Warrington Stebbins has been added to the already long list of the victims of the deadly cigarette.

> RUBBER RAT AND A DOG. Small Boy Makes Fun for a Crowd and Worries a Terrier. Chicago News.

A rat, a terrier and a small boy caused thousands of people to congregate on West Madison street about 9 o'clock last night, and it was not a real rat, either. The rat, which was a most natural-looking ru ber affair, was connected with a long, thin pipe and a bulb. Every time the squeezed the bulb the rat would leap ward in a most lifelike manner and the ladies on the street would shriek with terror and gather up their skirts. This de-lighted the crowd, which surged down on the boy and the rat from every direction. The fun was kept up for an hour or more, even the policeman on the beat stop-ping now and then for a good laugh. Suddenly, however, a sleek-looking rat terrier sprung through the crowd and made for his mortal enemy. Down he pounced. The boy gave the bulb a jab and the rat leaped about six feet. Again the dog made a spring. This time he caught the rat in his teeth and the pressure caused it to give out a most lifelike squeak, which delighted dog and audience alike. By this time the street was packed. Tir after time the dog would shake the rat and put it down, only to see it leap again, to the wild delight of the crowd. For the first half hour it was mere play to blucky little terrier, but after awhile things to grow monotonous. The dog lay down for a rest and the rat jumped over him. This was too much for canine flesh and blood to stand; he leaped up again and now the contest kept up until the dog Domingo Elizaldo, president; Eduardo Hi-dalgo, Homero Moria and Dr. Garbo Agu-exhaustion. Panting and with eyes pro-truding, he made a few more ineffectual snaps at the rubber rat, then turned over on his side and lay his head on the pave-ment. His owner, a little Irishman, worked

ON THE HOLMES CASE

PHILADELPHIA DETECTIVE IN TOWN LOOKING FOR EVIDENCE.

It May Have Been That Pietzel and Children Were Murdered in This City.

Frank Geyer, a Philadelphia detective. arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and one of the first things which he did was to consult the local police authorities. Mr. Geyer will be here for several days working up the celebrated Holmes insurance swindle case, in which a St. Louis man named Pietzel and his three children disappeared, after which Holmes claimed the insurance on Pietzel's life. Mr. Geyer comes to attempt to clear the mystery which surrounds the case, for it has always been believed that Pietzel, and, perhaps, the children were murdered. H. H. Holmes, or Howard, as he sometimes called himself, is known to have spent some time in Indianapolis, and it may develop that this city was the enacting place of the supposed tragedy. It is said that the children were brought here, but what became of them is unknown.

The case was one of the most celebrated of the country, as the amount at stake was large, and the operations of Holmes were most daring. Mr. Geyer is reticent about what information he may have, but it is said he has additional evidence which indicates that murder was committed, and at Indianapolis is to be found a link in the chain of evidence. Holmes is now serving a long term in the Pennsylvania penitentiary, having been convicted at Philadelphia for defrauding the insurance companies. Pietzel disappeared from St. Louis and Holmes laid claim to the insurance upon his life. He produced a corpse which he claimed to be that of Pietzel, but which was proved otherwise by the insurance companies. Howard's operations cover nearly the entire continent, and he known to have visited a half-dozen cities. He was here for some time, and while here he attempted to defraud a young lady living on the South Side, to whom he was married. She had turned over her property to him, but, fortunately, his true char-NEW YORK, June 29.—The Hamburg- acter came to light and she suffered little American steamer Dania reached quaran- financial loss. Henry Harding's Wheat Turned Out

Twenty-Five uBshels to Acre.

Commissioner Henry Harding threshed wheat yesterday. Threshing day is always an important event on the Harding farm, but it was doubly so yesterday because of the big yield of wheat in the Commissioner's favorite field. Like his neighbors, he had whittled on the fence some of the hot days this summer and watched the which cannot be used in any other manner. | best product on the farm almost shrivel under the intense glare of the sun. Day after day the Commissioner used to set wild hilarity which follows the smoking of under the big oak in his front yard and hope that the night would bring rain. Then he would come down to the courthouse next morning and tell them how dry it was out on the farm. "If it don't rain pretty soon I won't have five bushels of wheat," the Commissioner used to say to Deputy Auditor Johnson, and then he would go out and watch the grass burn in the courthouse yard. But the rain came finally and blessed the Commissioner as well as his neighbor. He had been telling his friends all along that he would be satisfied with a ten-bushel yield, but he didn't anticipate anything like the yield which yesterday's threshing developed. The Commissioner assisted in the work, and even got upon the stack behind the machine, and puffed and perspired and cleared away the bright golden straw as many good people to know that the cigar- it rolled out. After awhile he got very tired and walked over to the machine. He watched his men as they carted away sack after sack of the yellow grain. Then he stepped up to the register and looked

"Twenty-five bushels to the acre." yelled to his man, and looked again. There was no mistake; he was getting just fifteen bushels to the acre more than he expected. It was with difficulty that he could contain himself till he got to the house where the women folks were getting dinner for the harvesters. THE BUSINESS MAN'S LUNCH

Hard Work and Indigestion Go Hand in Hand.

Concentrated thought, continued in, robs the stomach of necessary blood, and this is also true of hard physical labor. When a five horse-power engine is made to do ten horse-power work something is going to break. Very often the hard-worked man coming from the field or the office will "bolt" his food is a few minutes which will take hours to digest. Then too, many foods are about as useful in the stomach as a keg of nails would be in a fire under a boiler. The ill-used stomach refuses to do its work without the proper stimulus which it gets from the blood and nerves. The nerves are weak and "ready to break," because they do not get the nourishment they require from the blood, finally the ill-used brain is morbidly wide awake when the overworked man attempts to find rest in bed.

The application of common sense in the treatement of the stomach and the whole system brings to the busy man the full ensyment of life and healthy digestion when ne takes Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets to relieve a billous stomach or after a too hearty meal, and Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood. The "Pellets" are tiny sugarcoated pills made or highly concentrated vegetable ingredients which relieve the stomach of all offending matters easily and thoroughly. They need only be taken for a short time to cure the billousness, constipation and slothfulness, or torpor, of the liver; then the "Medical Discovery" should be taken in teaspoonful doses to increase the blood and enrich it. It has a peculiar effect upon the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels, toning up and strengthening them for all time. The whole system feels the effect of the pure blood coursing through the body and the nerves are vitalized and strengthened, not deadened, or put to sleep, as the so-called celery compounds and nerve mixtures do-but refreshed and fed on the food they need for health, If you suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia, nervousness, and any of the ills which come from impure blood and disordered stomach, you can cure yourself with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery which can be obtained at any drug store in the country.
